

if math to you is adding up your hand...

...then you might be a Zander

Getting caught sucks.

So don't let it happen to you. Underage gambling IS a big deal and it IS illegal. You will get caught "red-handed."

So, what? What's the worst that can happen?

Underage gambling has more consequences than you think. Penalties may include:

- A $125 fine (The cost of 2 video games or 14 movie tickets)
- Court costs that may double the fine (ouch, there goes your gas money)
- Lose your winnings (It's true)
- Four hours of community service (bet you'd look pretty cool in that orange jumpsuit)

This is the deal.

If you are under 18, you cannot legally gamble in any commercial establishment (includes slots, poker, all table games, keno, lottery games and scratch tickets, and more.)

(Yeah, you might think it sucks. But it's the law!)

Who the hell is Zander? Why should I care?

You don't want to be a Zander.

Zander thought underage gambling was cool, but the games became too hot to handle

- His job is toast (there goes even more money)
- His baseball scholarship went up in smoke (strike 3)
- His As and Bs are now smoldering Cs and Ds (so much for college)
- To stop the burn, he turned to smoking and drinking (more run-ins with the police)

I know a Zander... what should I do?
